HOW MRS. BELMONT WAS OPERATED UPON.

THE OPERATION.

"An operation is performed usually in the interval between attacks, in the case of Mr. Rockefeller, and when the patient is in the best of health. In preparing the patient for the operation the patient is not allowed to eat solid food for hours. When the part to be operated upon is thoroughly scrubbed with green soap. Sometimes a poultice of green soap is put on the skin, which is inverted in the water to wash off all the soap, and has all suds in the skin. The skin is then thoroughly washed with alcohol.

"The instruments are subjected to sterilizing by heat—a temperature of 220° F.

"The patient then takes her place on the operating board in her own chamber, and lying in a natural position, prone on her back, ready for the surgeon.

"The surgeon makes a small incision, whose sole duty is to etherize the patient, and this is the next and last preliminary step.

"The first step in the operation is to disengage the tumor from the skin, and with the knife carefully, picking up any arteries that may cut and tying them to prevent bleeding. A fine string of catgut is used for this, and the artery ends that are left are left for nature to close up. The cut is sterilized and is as fine as a thread.

"The incision is made in an oblique direction and midway between the middle of the abdomen and the bone to which I have referred. This incision varies in length, according to structure.

"It is a mistake to suppose that appendicitis is always due to the presence of feces; it is always due to the presence of a grape seed or other foreign substance in this little sea. On the contrary, a majority of cases are due to known causes. Some persons are subject to certain attacks. Mrs. Belmont seems to be such a one.

"Women are less subject to the disease than men, but among those who do get it, nearly half know nothing about it, and get appendicitis in greater numbers than women.

"It is not difficult to treat. Nearly all cases recover, and Mrs. Belmont's chances should be the very best.

"Getting well is to keep it in place for six months. It is impossible to make even a guess as to how long Mrs. Belmont will be confined to her room."

Bank Teller Deserted by His Rich Wife and Left to Die Alone.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 23.—Robert Crawford, teller of the Norwalk (Conn.) Bank, is dying in a ward of the local hospital. He receives no more attention than the pauper patient. He is apparently friendless.

Less than two miles from the hospital in a magnificent villa, surrounded by all the comforts of life, live his wife and two sons, young men. Mrs. Crawford has an income of $50,000 a year and the sons have allowances of thousands in addition. Her maiden name was Minnie Lawrence, and her father was a millionaire fruit dealer, who left her his entire fortune. The reasons why this is were told by husband and wife to-day.

The programme consisted of O'Brien and Charley Farnon, and the debut of Mr. O'Brien's three-year-old boy, who scored a decided hit. Arthur Dunn, who sang some clever parodies; James Thornton, Bonham, and others; and Harry Charles, Falke, assisted by Charles Lillian, Cooper and Reynolds, Ben Harvey and Company, Baston and Banks, Foy and Dot, West, Little May, Bassett, Sidney Gilmore, Grouse Sisters, the Le Counta, Little May Belle, De Cameo, Juggler, Sam Brothers, Edna Birch and Marks and O'Neill.

The husband was a member of the Norwalk Bank and a young man in the twenties, was teller. I met and married Minnie Lawrence twenty years ago. For four years our life was happy. I worked hard, my wife died, and I have been as comfortable as possible under the circumstances.

The proceeds netted $50.

The only other incidents of the affair was that, with the one exception of Pete Dailey, who telephoned his regrets, every performer advertised appeared. James Thornton, who is appearing at the Hotel New York roof gardens, was late on account of a journey, but he was the recipient of a lively greeting when he was announced.

Bonnie Thornton, too, in addition to lending her audience on the stage, went among the audience and shook hands nearly 200 for the Fund.

The arrangements for the benefit were in the hands of Alderman Frederick Flock, Charles Farnon, and Clarence McCormick, and at the time was attended to by the staff of the benefit.
